

Bluegrass Band to Benefit Sheriffs' Camp

Save

Sunday, August 11, 3-5PM
for this Concert, Rain or Shine

Grab your lawn chair, some snacks, and your favorite beverage and head to the New York State (NYS) Sheriffs' Camp (Camp Iroquois) on Keuka Lake on Sunday, August 11 for a benefit concert.

Bluegrass band Gone Fishin' will fill the air with toe-tapping music from 3:00 – 5:00 p.m.

Admission is free so bring your friends and help continue to provide a no-cost camp experience to children throughout New York who would not otherwise attend summer camp. Camp Iroquois operates completely on donations and is located at 9825 East Bluff Drive, Penn Yan, NY.

ABOUT CAMP IROQUOIS:

For more than 40 years, the NYS Sheriffs' Camp has hosted children whose families cannot afford a summer camp opportunity or a summer vacation. Boys and girls between the ages of nine and 12 from across the state enjoy a unique week-long camp experience that features a multitude of water, sport, and land activities along with character-building exercises and demonstrations by sheriffs' deputies, canines, special forces, and motorcycle patrols. With deputies serving alongside counselors, the camp focuses on building friendships with law enforcement and among campers.

ABOUT GONE FISHIN':

This six-piece band from Webster, NY performs in its own unique bluegrass style, incorporating traditional to new grass to folk, country, and rock.
